Symbolic Threat -- the essence of this threat is the perception that the culture of the host society (its values, beliefs, and norms) will be changed in undesirable ways by the arrival of immigrants from other countries.

Realistic Group Conflict -- the essence of this threat is that immigrant groups compete for scarce economic resources that citizens of the host country do not want to share. They also pose threats to the welfare of citizens of the host country.

Interpersonal Threat -- the essence of this threat is that individual members feel threatened both physically and psychologically when interacting with immigrants.
